

Do you drive on the job?

It's risky business. Drive like your boss is sitting beside you.

THE OCCUPATIONAL ROAD SAFETY PARTNERSHIP

The road as your workplace

When you get behind the wheel for work, get a grip on who's responsible for your health and safety.

Check out the Workers Compensation Act and the Occupational Health and Safety Regulation at WorkSafeBC.com.

The road ahead

Everyone needs to work together to keep the journey safe for workers who drive for their work. That's why WorkSafeBC has formed a partnership with the British Columbia Automobile Association Traffic Safety Foundation. Its mission? To decrease injuries and fatalities in B.C. due to worker and work-related motor vehicle incidents. The Occupational Road Safety Partnership will draw upon WorkSafeBC's knowledge about occupational health and safety and BCAA-TSF's traffic safety expertise to deliver programs and resources, including an international, safe driving model for employers, a winter preparedness plan, and a worker road safety strategy. For the latest news on the campaign, please see WorkSafeBC.com and www.tsfbcaa.com.
