I do agree with the need for changes to the traffic control industry. But we also need to get the public awareness out there more so that people will know why we are there and that our job is just as dangerous as most others are, changes need to be made. The work zones should be able to have a posted speed limit that is to be adhered to by the traveling public. For example school zones are a set speed of 30km, why can't we have varying speeds pending on the site itself as to what the speed limit should be, the RCMP or local municipal police should then be able to give out infractions to motorists for disobeying a posted speed limit in a construction zone. Too many flag people are injured or killed because of speeding motorists!
