Donna - I know how busy you are - and I want to thank you for taking the time to send me this. I know that it's not easy to present in a public hearing and not everyone feels comfortable doing that or wants to.

I really do thank you for following up - and if you do want your remarks to be be part of the record - then just let me know and I'll pass it along - otherwise you can be sure I've heard your concerns.

Roberta

Hello again,

I must tell you, I don't know much about you? I sure find it hard to find time (I always make time for the important things in life). I was going to do a detailed write up of all the things that I notice, and the things I hear in my industry right from the top to (I will not say bottom, I'm sure you understand). I decided summarizing was the best idea. I'm sure your quiet busy and appreciate people who keep it short.

I think that the COR program that I took with the Construction Safety Network is most definitely on the right track. The main idea of getting the information out there to all companies, and making them think. Some of the things I heard were train, make people feel safe, inform them of there rights, make them feel important (care), positive work environment, make sure the message is clear, and FOLLOW UP. These are some of things I have believed in for years. I hear almost daily so much negativity, people are not buying into the new way of thinking. I empathize with some, they have been screwed over time and again. Some employees will do what ever it takes to not loose there jobs, this includes supervisors (intimidations happens at every level as I'm sure your aware). I real have tried quit a few times to make people see that you the WCB (WORK SAFE BC) are there to help. The culture is a huge thing to change. People want to believe that someone is caring about them they just can't see it. In summary I'm looking for more help and guidance. I always try to stay positive (help me not to be drug down). I believe that you are passionate about your job it real shows. I just want you to know that I real love learning new things. I would so much like to help you as well. Thanks so much for taking the time to get back to me. Cheers!
