3.22(b) Should additionally specify a time limit after which orientation and training must be provided. The hazards in many workplaces change slowly over time with many minor adaptations made to mitigate changing risk levels. Because of the insidious nature of these changes, the organization may not realize additional training is necessary for a worker returning from an absence based solely on recognizing changed hazards.

Otherwise, the proposed changes will have little impact at my place of employment. We already do everything proposed by these amendments, and will only need to strengthen some areas of our training to be in full compliance.

4. Please indicate your level of support of the proposed amendments: generally agree
